

Current Event: Opioid shortage in veterinary medicine

You cannot turn on the news today without hearing a story about opioid use in the United States. Because of the opioid crisis in human medicine veterinary clients are affected. Veterinarians prescribe or dispense opioids for very limited uses, but know it is critical for certain animals to receive these medications. How have veterinarians been affected by the opioid crisis? Share your thoughts on how veterinary medicine should approach this issue.

This image shows a single sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There are no margins, text, or other markings on the paper.

