Dear Quality Department:

My son was eating your Shrimp Dip after I brought it home from Good Foods Market on 16th Street. After one bite he said it tasted "funny" and he felt sick. He had diarrhea and vomiting the next morning. We took him to visit our doctor and are currently waiting on results.

When I started checking the dip, I noticed a greenish material, maybe mold or dirt, on the lid of the jar. It was a 10 oz jar with "23 Oct 2008" date. Since you are a large company, I figure you have a quality control department that checks products before they leave your plant. I've been buying your seafood dips for years and trusted your products, but I will switch brands now.

I would like for you to cover my son's doctor's visit and testing. I still have the jar in the refrigerator and would be happy to send it to you. You can call me at 555-555-5566. I hope nobody else has become ill.

Sincerely,

Angelina Angry
